We are the Spirit of Youth

Bubbling, bursting, overflowing with the thrill of being,
Youth is a time of brilliant aching joys, bittersweet sorrows.
A laughing, carefree time . . .
A searching, wondering time.
Youth is a rocketing, racing
discovering spirit
That finds its own mountains to climb,
And learns how easy it is to fall.
And through it all the unquenchable spirit of youth shines brightly
to light the way
As we reach for unreachable stars.

1400587

Following the well worn paths to knowledge

Youth is I-know-all-the-answers spirit
That still finds old unanswered questions . . .

Does God really care about me?

Will I ever understand chemistry?

Sometimes the interminable lectures,
the long hours spent over homework

Kindle a spark in the mind of a student

And the power of thought is revealed.

Somehow the test is passed, the term paper written in time,

And the hunger to create finds expression
in a painting,

a poem,

a song.

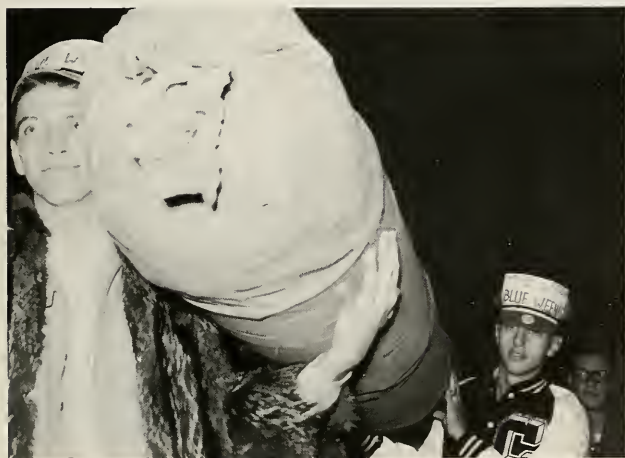

Exploding
in the thrill of victory

The spirit of the Blue weenie—
 And the challenge of competition.
 Youth responds
 with enthusiastic cheerleaders,
 animated pep sessions,
 The contagious thrill of the spectators,
 The will to win on the field.
 Sweaty, exhausting, demanding hours of practice . . .
 Tense sessions in the locker room
 at half-time . . .
 Muscles that stretch and strain to accomplish their ultimate
 And discover new limits of endurance.
 And the payoff—the skill and speed and timing and teamwork that succeeds.
 The spirit that fights to win . . .
 and yet knows how to lose.

Discovering ourselves in those around us

Above the frenzy of homework, clubs, social life
 Youth still reaches toward God
 For the peace only he can provide.
 Youth still seeks solitude in the company of long shadows,
 To hum the private, unrecorded melodies
 And probe the soul for knowledge of self.
 To ponder,
 to question,
 to pray.
 And sometimes . . .
 to find the answers.

Discovering that we belong to God

The spirit of youth is not a solitary spirit . . .

The warm glow of friendship, laughter,
fun permeates each hour, every day.

For youth chants a melody of its own—
the song of living.

Decorating the gym for dances, the wild beat of the band,

The lingering fragrance of crushed flowers,

The hayrides, pizza dates, slumber parties,

Giving your time and heart for a cause,

All these are part of the wild melody,

The spirit of youth.

ACADEMICS

Pastor Zadeik . . . Faith in the Spirit of Youth

A smile, a twinkle, a hearty laugh . . . it's P.Z.

SPIRIT OF YOUTH—what an appropriate theme for a high school yearbook! As anyone of an older generation can observe (if not remember with nostalgia), the teen years are a time of high spirits; boundless, bouncing energy; zestful living. Young people today are on the go (would you believe go-go?) and looking for where the action is.

Concordia High has no lack of this exuberance of youth. School spirit has been high this year, and that makes all the difference—whether in the laboratory or on the gridiron, classroom or class party. For a high-powered Senior Class it's been the greatest, the kind of Senior year you dreamed of. For a record high Freshman Class it's been a wonderful way to get started, with big tracks out ahead to follow.

But what has made our theme so apt and our year together so satisfying is SPIRIT of YOUTH, written large—SPIRIT of CHRIST, bringing us into fellowship, giving us life to grow and enjoy together. That SPIRIT now go with you, leading you next year and through all years to new experiences and renewed faith.

You got the SPIRIT? Yeh, man!

The Reverend Peter A.
Zadeik, Jr., Principal

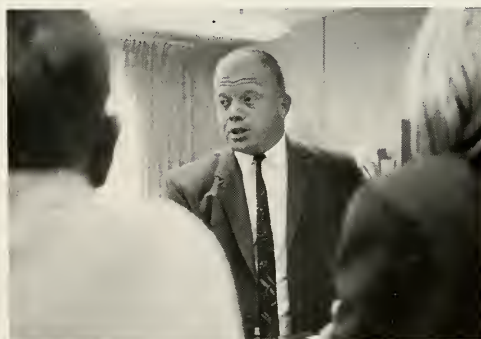

Attendance duties are capably handled by Mr. Carl Gallmeier.

Guideposts on the Road to Greater Maturity

Behind the free spirit of youth there must be a guiding force to control it and channel it in the proper direction. At Concordia we are very fortunate to have so many interested in our future. The guidance department, dedicated to helping the student prepare for his vocation in life, diligently performs many important services. From the time the Freshman enters high school to the day when the Senior receives his diploma, the guidance counselors advise him.

Shall I take Latin? Should I take another year of math? To answer these questions takes a special kind of patience and knowledge—our counselors are endowed with these gifts of God.

Responsibility for frosh orientation lies in the able hands of Mr. Glenn Parrish.

To make aware, to inform, to enthuse, to counsel, to understand and be understood . . . these are the goals of every teacher. Concordia's faculty—diligent, skillful, dedicated—this year provided students with the opportunity to grow and achieve. To the Christian teacher, one duty remains vitally important: to perform His will and to proclaim His word. In every situation our teachers strive to fulfill His Command: Go ye therefore and teach all nations . . . in the name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost.

French cuisine? No, but darn good food. Our cooks are l-r: Mrs. Bredemeyer, Mrs. Sommer, Mrs. Trier, Mrs. Redden, Mrs. Ostermeyer, and Mrs. Hall.

The Staff—They Also Serve

For every circle there must be a center. What is the center of our school? The faithful and efficient men and women called the staff remain the “backbone” of Concordia. Would life have been meaningful this year without that delicious hot lunch prepared by our cooks? How could any appointment have been kept without that cheerful reminder from the office secretaries? And how could anyone have kept all those textbooks and paperbacks without a smiling janitor ready, key in hand, to open a classroom door after school? For all this we are grateful.

Ready to serve us are our efficient secretaries: Mrs. Roemke, Mrs. Masenthin, and Mrs. Wiegman.

Spending a well-earned moment of rest, our able custodians: Mr. Grewe, Mr. Eicher, Mr. Bultemeier, and Mr. Stein.

God Is Alive

Once again religion proved to be the most meaningful class at Concordia. With the help of Rev. Gahl, Rev. Holland, Mr. Howard, Rev. Kenreich, Rev. Schmelder, and Mr. Westrick, Concordians learned how to make religion "come alive." From lectures, from class discussions, and from studying the Bible one can gain very much. However, life itself is a worshipful response. Religion class is only one small part of "religion." In the halls, in classes, at games, and at home the influence of religion stands out. It reflects the general feeling about our religion: "In gear."

Diane Pfeiffer expresses her ideas in a Senior Religion class.

Church History students learn just why we believe what we do.

Students Express Themselves in Art

Papier-mache figures help to increase the skill of art students.

Art is a means of communicating man's thoughts and ideas. As English courses strive to develop skill in communicating with words, so the art department endeavors to develop the skill of speaking without words. This department is headed by Mr. Grabowski and consists of two major courses, art and art appreciation.

Sara Endorf gets some helpful instruction from Mr. Grabowski.

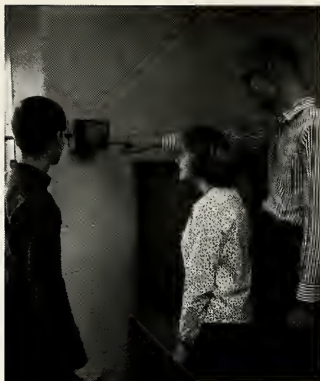

Colleen McDougal's ideas take form on the potter's wheel.

Don Canfield, Ann Hess and Bob Lenz work on a sketching assignment.

Applied Science students discover the world of weather.

Science Complements Our Daily Living

No, I cannot. Furthermore, I will not. I refuse to dissect that smelly, wiggly, ugly chartreuse frog over there.

When one thinks of science, perhaps this scene comes to mind. But there are many other facets of science for the student to explore. Besides biology, Concordia this year offered chemistry, physics, applied science, and advanced chemistry and biology.

What chem student can forget the tinkle of the test tube as it smashes to the floor? Who can forget those enriching lab reports? And what science student can forget the enlightening examinations?

Do you remember?

Oh, Linda, you've got to be kidding!

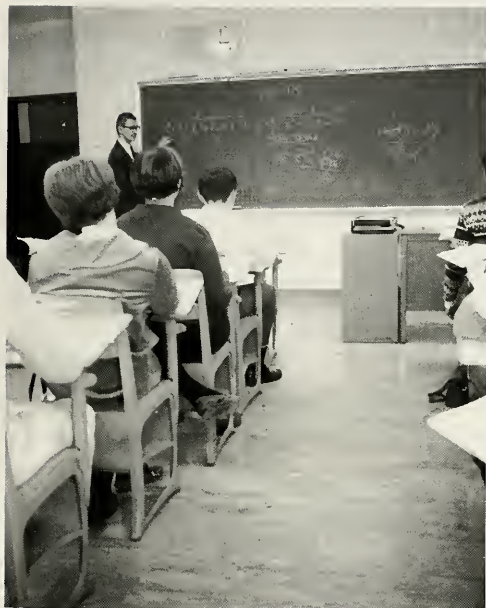

Making contact with the elements of life.

Sliderules add to the problems of Algebra I.

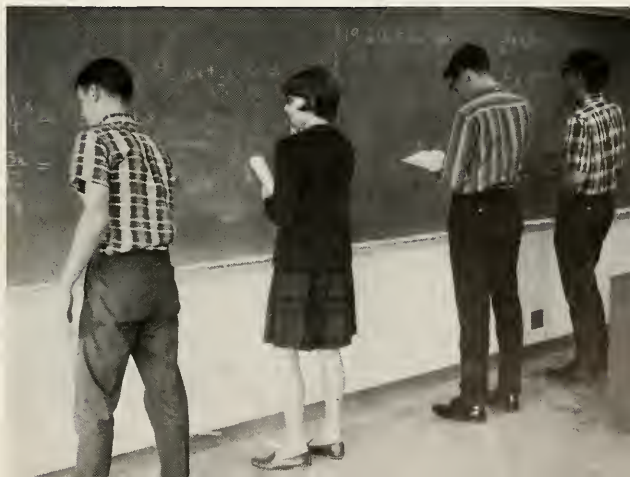

" $(a + b)^2 = a^2 + 2ab + b^2$." Say how's that again? This formula constitutes a small portion of knowledge which the mathematics student must memorize and comprehend.

Concordia's math department strives to clarify, interpret, and inform the student of essential techniques and theories. In a broader sense, math teaches the student to reason and think logically. This year, Topics in advanced math was added to the curriculum, offering the student a wider scope of knowledge.

Steve Ramming and Sandy Hemsoth make use of Mr. Gayer's polar co-ordinates.

"Didn't anybody get the answer I did?" wonders Jane Goerss.

Exploring the World of Words

"And you put a comma before and use a semicolon . . ."

This year, as one strolled down the hall of the first floor of Concordia this conversation echoed and re-echoed throughout. Also there could always be heard some rumor about a not-too-distant book report or quiz.

What did the English classes achieve this year? A great deal!

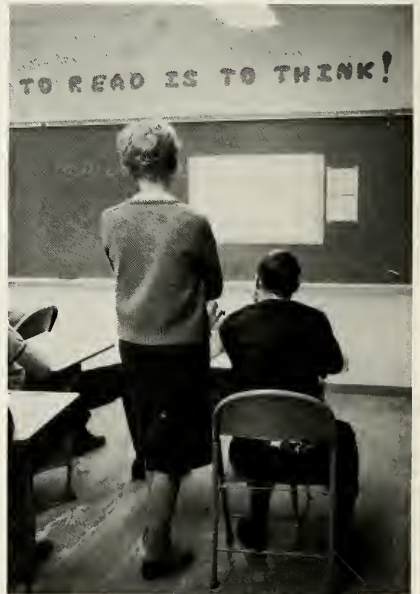

Understanding the ideals of great men opens the doors of the future. Learning self-expression through correct grammar and punctuation allows one to travel safely beyond these doors.

A panel discussion in speech class helps Tom Dinkel, Roger Heine, and Gary Dinnelt improve their speaking abilities.

Mr. Hinkle's Sophomores brush up on their grammar by diagraming sentences.

Words to read by inspire students in Developmental Reading.

Freshmen concentrate on tomorrow's assignment, while Mr. Kraemer stands ready to assist.

Lab Adds to the Language Department

Foreign languages begin to make more sense when heard and spoken in the language lab.

Mr. Ramm anxiously awaits the response of an eager French I student.

During this past school year a new program was initiated in Concordia's foreign language department. The new language lab, used by all French and German classes, offered the student a better opportunity to learn to speak and listen to a foreign language. Meanwhile, back in the classroom, Mr. Faulkenstern and Mr. Ramm were quite occupied teaching the students grammar, vocabulary, and other skills necessary to fully comprehend a foreign language.

As the basis of several modern languages, including our own, Latin remains vitally important . . . just ask Mr. Buetow, Concordia's new Latin teacher. Latin also acquaints the student with a basic knowledge of ancient history and especially of the history of Rome.

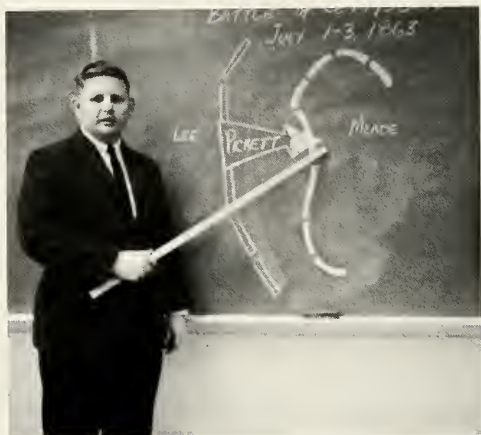

German I student, Rhoda Etzold, receives expert advice from third year scholars, Jerry McAfee, and Dan Schmidt.

"And this guy, Aeneas, took this little trip . . ." narrates Mr. Buerow.

Today's Students Prepare

Mr. Mayer explains the anatomy of a victory.

The Social Studies department of Concordia is one example of the wide field of study covered in our school. Students learn about our own country in some classes such as United States History, Government, and Economics. Other classes such as World History and Geography extend to facts outside of our United States boundaries.

But the Social Studies department offers more than the history and physical features of world. Some courses deal with probably the most important feature of the world—man. Sociology students study society and groups within society. In Psychology, a new course this year, this study narrows down to individual behavior.

In World History, Mr. Gallmeier delivers another interesting lecture brightened by a joke, story, or personal experience.

Sherrie Greiner refers to the bulletin board display, to help her express her ideas in a class discussion in one of the Economics classes.

for Life in Tomorrow's Changing World

The wide field of sociology is made a little clearer by the assembling of scrap books. Candy Volmerding, Carol Gerbers, and Darlene Witte look over some of them.

Psychology students use a finger maze in their study of human behavior.

Visiting Concordia to speak on human relations, Pastor Lutze holds the attention of his audience.

Girls Prepare for the Future

Home Ec. III students learn Child Care.

"Gosh! I burned it again!" Yes, almost every girl is faced with dilemma sooner or later in life. This is how the home-ec department comes to the rescue! This department, headed by Mrs. Roop, presents students with common-day situations which they now face as maturing teen-age girls and will face again and again in the future. Some skills developed by this department are cooking, sewing, child care, home decorating, and nursing—all vital to the modern homemaker.

"Make sure amount is exact now."

"Will it ever make sense?"

Bubble, bubble, toil, and trouble.

Prepare To Meet Challenging Business World

"Are you sure this is the way, Mrs. Shauer?"

As the outside world grows so, also, does the business department of Concordia. Students graduating from this expanding department can easily find a position in the business world of today. This department, headed by Miss Ross offers typing, shorthand, business machines, bookkeeping, and business math.

"Keep those eyes on the book!"

Addition and subtraction are all "favorites" of the business machine students.

"This next one is a real killer!"

P.E. Builds Strong Bodies 12 Ways

Throughout the year at any moment during the school day, one is likely to hear the enthusiastic cheerings and jeerings of the numerous physical education students hard at play on Concordia's gym floor. When tumbling on the trampoline, or when splashing in the shower, the physical education students demonstrate the well-known fact that athletics can provide recreation as well as physical fitness. A new activity was introduced this year for all the girls taking physical education, field hockey.

That's not quite cricket—I mean field hockey.

I know it hurts, but at least there's no homework.

Bookstore and Library Supplies Knowledge

Two services offered Concordia students this year are the bookstore and library. The bookstore, managed by Miss Ross, sells not only school supplies, but also paperback books. The library, too, is expanding to meet the needs of students trying to learn about an ever-changing world. This year Concordia library is under the direction of Mrs. Saueteig.

Phyllis Gensel and Linda Cullen help in the library by pasting in a card pocket.

Shop Class Experiments in Wood Working

"Now, you hold this wire and I'll . . ."

Listen! Do you hear the machines down in the shop room? I think I hear an electric drill!

Aside from operating machines, shop students learn to read blueprints and to use hand tools. But before the pupil can create objects in shop, he must first learn how to represent them graphically. This is the purpose of mechanical drawing. This year a new course was added to the shop curriculum, an alternating course in electricity. Yes, that must be an electric drill.

Bill Koch skillfully avoids cutting anything but wood.

Military Classes Find Instruction and Discipline

Some sophomores learn a few (?) words of wisdom from Lt. Col. Van Oosten.

Again this year the freshmen and sophomore military classes have studied the M1 rifle in detail. Under the ROTC program the department has been able to expand and include numerous films of safety and first aid which were furnished by the US Army. Next year promises to get the program into full swing.

ACTIVITIES

Student Council members act as representatives in their home-rooms at Monday meetings.

Student Body Supports Council

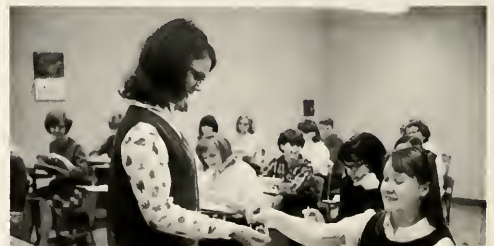

The Student Council is nothing more than a student body government whose purpose is to serve as a link between students and faculty. This year's Council perfected the committee system which proved to be a great asset to the Council. Among other things, the Student Council this year adopted a Japanese orphan, conducted several paper drives, and decided many controversial issues within the school.

Hey, gang, this is one-way! Remember? Hey, gang! Hey!

Religion Club Aids in Future Church Work

As the church grows, so does the need for church workers. Future pastors, teachers, social workers, and deaconesses look to this club for help in an effort to better prepare themselves for their future work—the expansion of the Christian church.

The Religion Club is led by Mary Hartman, treasurer; Michele Hartman, secretary; and Cindy Schwartz, president.

Members work to make Christmas favors for the Rescue Mission.

The Religion Club, sponsored by Mr. Howard, is made up of students who wish to better their relationship with both God and their fellowman.

Seniors who have high scholastic ability and who are in the top 15% of their class are chosen for the National Society. This year there were twenty-eight members. Juniors and seniors who are highly skilled in the literary field are chosen for Gamma Rho Delta.

Language Clubs Show Students the Customs of Foreign People

The students studying German, Latin, or French are all invited to join either the German, Latin, or the newly formed French club. The purpose of each club is to enlighten and inform the students about the customs, people, and the country they are studying as a whole. Each club sponsors activities to earn money for special projects at the end of the year such as trips or banquets.

The German club learns more about the language of the fathers of our religion.

Students of Latin club are acquainted with the history of the ancient Roman world.

Computer Club Learns About IBM Machines at I.U.—P.U. Center

Two days a week the Junior and Senior boys in the computer club go to the IU Purdue Center. The purpose of these is to learn how the computer "ticks." Before learning to run the computer, the boys must learn its language and how to program it. The more advanced member of the computer club has quite an advantage over the beginner because when he is finished working the problems in the text book, he can work out his math problems.

"Where is the one for the girls?"

The Biology Club is open to any student currently taking biology who wishes to learn more about topics only briefly discussed in class. The Advanced Biology Club gives one an opportunity to more fully explore biology. It is designed for those going into science professionally.

Junior Red Cross and Y-Teens Serve

Sending packages to men in Viet Nam and giving parties for homeless children are just two of the many services performed by the Junior Red Cross. Another girls organization, which is new this year, is Y-teens. It stems from the YWCA and is brought into the high school to bring girls together in fellowship, religion, and just plain fun.

Service is the middle name of the Junior Red Cross.

Concordia's Choirs Enjoy Most Inspiring Season Ever

Active in many worshipful events, this past year, the "a capella" choir once again provided Concordia students the opportunity to complement their worship. Through their performance at chapel services, choir members fulfilled His word: "Make a joyful noise unto the Lord." By appearing on radio and television broadcasts the choir spread the Gospel to many people.

The training choir prepares the students to become a member of the "a capella" and also sings during chapel services. The Concordia Singers, having completed their second year of performing at school and community functions, is more successful than ever.

Here we come a caroling for the Spirit of Christmas tree.

Band and Orchestra Is Also There To Liven Up the Group.

Another eventful year has passed for the band and orchestra. The Tri-City Music Festival (this year held at Detroit) was very successful—new friends, a “riot” on the bus, and lots of hard work. Playing for football and basketball games provided the band members, as well as the spectators, with much enjoyment. “And the band (and orchestra) played on.”

There aren't seventy-six trombones, but the Brass Choir is composed of truly talented musicians.

Shakespeare or Shaw— Drama Club Performs

The thespians strike again. Another meaningful season has passed for the Drama Club. Though none of the members are ready to apply for their Actors Guild card, they did make a credible showing. A real dramatic production was undertaken for the first time in many years. In between football and basketball season, the club performed "The Child Buyer," a three act play that searches the basic morals of our money-minded society. Club sponsors, Mr. Ramm and Mr. Hinkle directed this and the spring production, "George Washington Slept Here", a light hearted comedy. As usual this year was topped off with a successful Drama Club banquet at which some members were honored with the famed "Roscoes."

Lu-Hi Voice Functions To Inform

Practicing what they print are sports staff Ron Gerbers, Fritz Wehrenberg III, Terry Breininger, and Mitch Henke.

Ink-stained hands, a black printer's apron, a dilapidated typewriter, a fearless reporter investigating the underworld crime syndicate. Concordia's newspaper, the Lu-Hi Voice, can hardly be categorized under this view of newspaper journalism. Being a school newspaper, the Lu-Hi Voice deals chiefly with school-centered events. Moreover, the staff members do not have ink stained hands, wear printer's aprons or use dilapidated typewriters. This year the staff of the Lu-Hi Voice produced an informative, highly interesting student newspaper.

Is this how the work gets done? Staff takes a well-earned rest.

Luminarian Staff Completes Frantic Year.

What is a school Yearbook! To the average student it is a picturesque journal of the schoolyear's events and happenings—both hilarious and solemn. To the average yearbook staff member the Luminarian is a mixture of panic, nervous indigestion, and the tearful pleadings (Listen, gang, we gotta meet this deadline) of an anxious editor. Always searching for perfection and sometimes achieving it, the Luminarian staff once again provided Concordia students with a memento of yet another year gone by.

Military Clubs Add Life to the Class

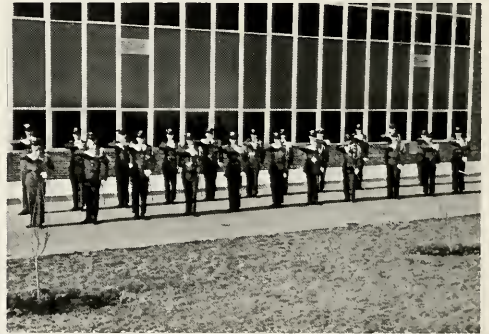

The Snap Squad represents Concordia's ultimate in Drill Teams. Capt. Tyson has reason to be quite proud of the Squad.

This year's military program experienced a few problems with regard to getting uniforms and getting settled. Next year this program will be greatly expanded with the introduction of ROTC rather than the NDCC program which has operated the military department in years past.

All right, fellows, do not clutch.

The Officers Club consists of all the officers in Concordia's military program. Here we see the group completing a sabre movement.

Lettermen's Club

—Give Me a "C"

Concordia's Lettermen find many useful little things to do right around school. This year they took care of the coat check at many of our home sporting events.

Concordia's Lettermen's Club—the real brawn of the school.

"What'ya mean we're short a coat!"

The Key Club—Seeking a Better Name for School

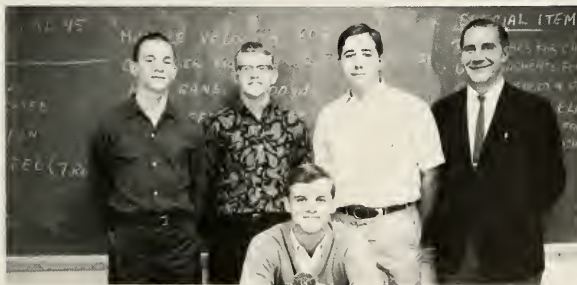

This year the Key Club has undertaken many worthwhile projects that have helped the name of the school and the community in general. Selling candy to help those unfortunate people who are victims of Muscular Distrophy. Around Christmas they pitched in and helped some people in the city to make the season a little merrier. Right around school, clearing the stage, keeping the chapel in shape and a little exterior redecorating all found their place on the Key Club's busy schedule.

Ron Dasler gives the chapel a personal touch.

This year's Key Club—the group that initiated many productive ideas in the betterment of the school.

Key men of the Key Club: L-R Ron Sietzer, secretary; Walter Adams, treasurer; Dan Saffen, president; Steve Ramming, v-president; Mr. Kramer, supervisor.

Intramurals—Fitness and Fun and Frolic

And it's another two points for some lucky team.

Buddy, can you spare a strike? Jim Heuer and Ron Dassler roll up points in intramural bowling.

Together. Concordians were given the opportunity to practice this age-old custom during intramural sports activities throughout the year. You like volleyball? You should have joined the intramural volleyball team! Or perhaps your game is basketball? Did you join up? As an all-time first, bowling was offered. Next year even greater results are expected.

G.A.A.—Girls Are Tougher Than You Think

We run the show! G.A.A. officers are: Debbie Ross, Pres.; Bonnie Buhr, V. Pres.; Iris Beckman, Sec.; Linda Bostelman, Point Recorder; Mitzi Krudop, Ass't. V. Pres.; Patti Dickmeyer, Treas.; Carol Dolan, Debbie Imler, Phyllis Schmidt, Terry Zwick, Sports Heads.

From tumbling to track, the Girls' Athletic Association this year participated in several sporting events. Aside from practicing athletic feats, the club sponsored several activities. As a fund-raising project, members hosted a reverse hayride in the fall. The main purpose of Concordia's G.A.A., however, is to promote sportsmanship and enjoyment among its members. A success!

Look! Up in the air! It's a G.A.A. member practicing her flip on the trampoline.

A victorious team, first in the state . . . good going girls.

Girl's Track Team Streaks to Victory

Pow! Zam! Bang! Here come Concordia's girls on to victory! In today's world learning to co-operate with others is vital. Through programs in girls' basketball, track, and gymnastics the athletic department stresses not only athletic perfection but also teamwork and sportsmanship.

Up and over for Ellen Werling at the state track meet.

Straining at the hurdles, Bonnie Buhr gives her last ounce of courage.

And the basketball team, victorious in their own right.

Outstanding Cheerleaders, Peppy Cheerblock, and Talented Twirlers Highlight a Great Year

This year the cheerblock was the organized organization it has been striving to be. Maroon sweaters with the school crest on them and white blouses made up the uniform. Practice and great school spirit make the cheerblock a beneficial service to our school and team.

Energy—that's the word to describe this year's cheerleaders, twirlers, and cheerblock. Hours spent in practicing old routines and thinking up new ones showed in their splendid performances. A competitive bonfire, the spirit stick, the Blue Weenie—these also increased school spirit this year.

The cheerblock, for the first time in uniforms and with a scheduled practice time, were led in enthusiastic support of our teams by the great cheerleaders.

And the twirlers delighted many half-time audiences with their routines.

The Varsity Cheerleaders this year: l. to r. Lois Hartman, Sandy Mommer, Marilyn Dunlap, Janet Scheuman, and Patti Purvis.

I don't know what's going on, but it's sure funny.

Practicing for a new routine are twirlers: Karen Gorrel, Carol Dolan, Bonnie McAfee, and Jennie Andersen.

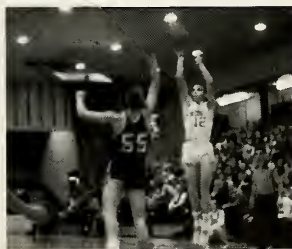

Leading the reserve team on this year were the reserve cheerleaders: Sue Schorey, Phyllis Schmidt, Debbie Gerke, Terri Zwick.

Getting ready for next year, the reserve twirlers: l. to r. Jane Procknow, Susie Fryback, Carol Dolan, Debbie Holt, Jane Puff, Rhonda Martin, Bonnie McAfee, Chris Anderson, Debbie Buchan, Cindy Ehrman.

Experience Helps Cadets to Winning Season

Terry comes off the boards with another rebound.

This year's Cadets led by Senior Ron Stelzer, and supported by hardworking juniors, fought back from a mid-season slump to end with a 13—10 record. After a fast start, Coach Parrish's team lost five straight games to tough competition. Determination and a well-drilled team accounted for four wins in the final five games. Up-and-coming soph, Dave Gerken, added enthusiasm as well as points in the final games. Post season thrills were many as the Cadets almost won Sectional 12.

Reserves and Frosh Teams Give Promise of Bright Seasons Ahead

An hour and a half before Concordia's varsity takes the floor, the reserve team gets to show their skills. This year they gave their fans quite a few thrills and ended the season with an 11—9 record.

The freshmen did even better. In their encounters with area 9th graders, they compiled a 14—6 record and won the Frosh Tournament. These showings give strong support to the Juniors "On to state in 68" cry.

'67 Cadets Make Cinders Fly

Dave Adams and Dave Russell look for last points in doubles.

Offensive-Minded Cadets Keep Base Paths Busy

He always gets his man; handling hot grounders is third baseman Jim Graft's specialty.

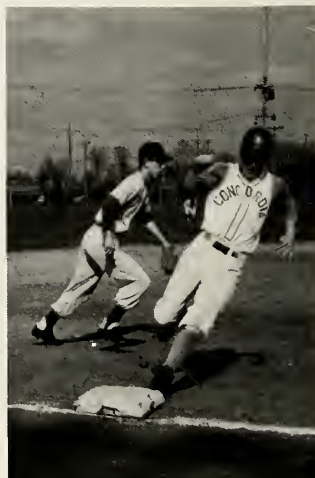

"Bases are loaded!" What will it be? A strike-out or home run? It is amazing how much excitement, determination and mere pleasure can be aroused by a single bat and ball. Baseball is a challenging sport not only because each player works for perfection. But the skill of all nine players has to be combined to form a single co-ordinatedly-working team. This year's baseball team under the coaching of Mr. Massucci attained this perfection and found victory this spring.

Stan Shafer gets his sports mixed up and really "tees off" on one.

Will he make it? Eric Taylor rounds third and heads home with another run.

Seniors Lead Golf

Team to Typically Good Season

Golf is a unique game in that man is not directly contending against another person or team but, instead, against nature itself. Par, bogey, green, tee shot, sand-pits, fairway, putt; these terms and many others to some people may mean very little, but to a golfer they can represent a challenge—a challenge to prove his talent, determination, and sportsmanship. Under the directing of Mr. Parish this year's team has met the challenge face to face and each player has demonstrated his accomplished skills as a golfer.

Out of the rough and onto the green goes the little ball powered by Denny Hiffernan.

Strokes are often gained by a good chip shot, as demonstrated by Steve Hitzeman.

Dave Haugk shows the perfect follow through that adds distance to shots.

Individual Efforts

Lead C-C Team

A little jog before a meet never hurt anyone; just ask these varsity runners.

Muscles straining and hearts thumping—here comes Concordia's Cross-Country team. At meets the team proved itself worthy of much praise. Highlights of the season were Dave Gerken's meet record at the East Noble Soph-Frosh Meet and Brian Nuechterlein's qualification for the Regional Meet.

Always placing high in the meets was Junior Brian Nuechterlein.

The Rough and Rarin 'Reslin Team Rides Again

This years wrestling team had quite a successful season. The team's record was 9 wins and 3 losses. In the NEIAC tournament our grapplers placed first and in the Decatur tournament they placed second. At the end of the season the team voted for captain and the most valuable wrestler; they came up with Steve Dobbins and Wayne Finner. Concordia certainly has reason to be proud of its wrestling team for their effort and their showing.

Blood, Toil, Tears and Sweat all go into making a winning team.

"Majesty Aglow" Sparkles at First Annual

This year's coronation, entitled "Majesty Aglow," was Concordia's first annual homecoming. A bonfire and pep rally ignited this eventful evening. Following the rally, the game with Garrett took place. After the football victory, an alumni dance was held in the gym, lavishly decorated for the occasion. During the dance intermission the five candidates, two juniors and three seniors, were escorted through the arch of sabers to their positions to await the crowning of Concordia's first homecoming queen. Suspense mounted as last year's queen Colleen Bercot stepped forward to crown senior candidate Miss Cindy Schwartz, queen of CLHS for 1966-1967.

The court and their escorts at the coronation dances.

The royal court at their seats of honor during the game.

Seniors wood win the bonfire competition!

THE MOON and beyond

Bright, new horizons await today's students. . .
new technologies. . .new advancements on all fronts
. . .even the moon and whatever lies beyond.

How far you go in this space age depends partly on your imagination but primarily on your education and training. Conquering new horizons will demand more of today's graduates—more knowledge, more skills, more training and more specialization.

Our Free Enterprise system, with its high living standards, gives you an opportunity to "shoot for the moon" in any field. Whether or not your target is reached depends on how well trained you are to launch your career.

The spirit of youth . . .
 explosive exhilarating elusive.

Here, in these pages,
 we have tried to capture that spirit
 Yet is is a quality that cannot be imprisoned on paper.

It is wild and laughing . . .
 questioning . . . searching . . .
 and free.

It is not a span of years,
 But a glorious feeling of being,
 of living each moment to the fullest.

That is the spirit of youth.
